AEROPLANES
 SERIES OF 48. NO. 2
SPITFIRE
 The Supermarine Company built the winning machines of the last three Schneider Trophy Contests, and it is not surprising therefore, that the famous Spitfire, eight-gun fighter should be claimed to be the fastest military aeroplane in existence. It is certainly capable of speeds well in excess of 360 m.p.h. The very latest flush-riveted stressed skin principles are used in the construction of the single-seater airframe, giving extraordinary lightness and strength, and power is provided by the famous Rolls-Royce Merlin engine of 990 h.p.
